Canton sewage rates are raised; trustees blast Detroit Water Board

Four Canton Township trustees bit the bullet Tuesday night and voted to increase sewage disposal rates charged to residents by 50 per cent.

Trustee James Poole voted no because the motion was to raise the hike by 50 per cent instead of 49.67 per cent to save clerical expense in computing the new charges.

For the minimum water bill, the difference between an increase of 49.67 and 50 per cent is one cent for a three-month period. Treasurer Carl Parsell and Trustee Brian Schwall were absent.

THE INCREASE in water bills for Canton residents was caused by an increase in the sewage disposal portion of the water bill imposed by the Detroit Water Board.

Clerk John Flodin explained that the minimum water bill in Canton is $7.99 for the first 10,000 gallons of water a resident uses in a three-month period. Of this amount, $3.37 is for water, $3.37 is for sewage disposal, and $1.25 is a meter charge.

For the minimum user, the sewage disposal charge will now be $5.06 for a total water bill of $9.68.

The motion to raise the sewage disposal rate, made with hesitancy by Trustee Bob Myers, also included instructions that Canton's attorney would work closely with Wayne County in considering legal action to force the Detroit Water Board to rescind its rate increase.

If Detroit should lose on the legal front, Supervisor Robert Greenstein said, a rebate on the higher amounts collected would be given to all water users.

Greenstein said Wayne County expects to make a decision on legal action within a week or two on behalf of 15 municipalities in the county which are affected. Oakland County has already filed a suit and was initially denied a request for an injunction barring the Detroit Water Board from proceeding with the hike.

Greenstein claimed Detroit violated its own city charter by failing to substantiate the need for the hike before granting final approval.

"Because Detroit chose to raise the sewage rate, unless the courts decide otherwise, Canton has no choice but to pass this hike unto users because the township just cannot absorb the added cost," Greenstein added.

The information made available to trustees was that the rate hike will be effective Sept. 1 based on water used in Canton during August.

FLODIN POINTED out that there has not been a single rate increase in the water bills since Canton installed its water system.

The only change was seven years ago, he added, when the minimum use was lowered from 12,000 to 10,000 gallons. The Canton markup from the Detroit-imposed rate is the lowest in the metropolitan area, Flodin said.

A small markup from Detroit's charges is needed, the clerk explained, to cover administrative expenses, maintenance of the water system, and breaks in sewers and water lines.

"Our certified public accountant's analysis earlier was that our water department is losing money and is in a very poor position to absorb any future extra costs," commented Greenstein. "Our new CPA has some doubts about that analysis and if reports of the water department's solvency differs in the future this board can then consider an adjustment.

"But we are obligated to our residents to make sure our water system is self-sustaining."

When chided by Myers for voting no on the motion, Poole answered that the township was not in the business of making money from the people it serves—a reference to raising sewage rates by 50 per cent instead of 49.67 per cent.

The board expressed reluctance to take the action and stressed it had no choice. Trustees and administrators placed the blame squarely on Detroit and expressed hope legal action by Wayne County might result in a reversal.

Administration overruled

Joint bands to continue

Band students at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) will continue blowing horns and trumpets in joint bands from Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.

That is the decision of Plymouth Board of Education members, who unanimously voted Monday night to maintain the status quo of the CEP's current band program.

THE DECISION differs from an administrative recommendation to establish separate varsity bands for Salem and Canton high schools and maintain joint marching, symphony, concert and cadet bands during the 1975-76 school year.

The administration also recommended hiring another instrumental music teacher, who could continue the current music program at the CEP or establish a separate program for Canton High.

But, after hearing the unanimous opposition of students and parents to a band splitting proposal at a recent school board meeting, board members scrapped the split band concept and agreed to forego hiring of another music teacher for budgetary reasons.

Band students and parents at last week's meeting reacted to an earlier administrative proposal, designed to establish separate band programs for Salem and Canton high schools by the 1976-77 school year.

That proposal would have implemented a two-year-old resolution of a previous school board and satisfied the demands of some parents. Parents in favor of the split band concept say their children currently cannot participate in the band of their choice because of membership competition from both schools.

"FROM THE INCEPTION of the discussion, the argument that the present program prevents participation has not been substantiated," Trustee Gary Mirto said Monday night. "Where participation needs to be increased is not in the performance aspect.

"To proceed with division of the program now is simply the desire of the building principal (Kent Buikema) to create a separate identity for his school. From the very beginning, it's been clear to me that certain individuals tried to get this by the board by hook or by crook."

Board members unanimously approved an amended motion of Trustee E.J. McClendon to maintain the status quo of the CEP's current band program.

McClendon originally moved to maintain the joint band program for both high schools and hire a third instrumental music teacher. Board Vice President Marcia Borowski amended her motion to delete the music teacher hiring.

"At this time with our budget situation and other pressing needs, I can't see expanding the music program to a point that, ideally, I would like to see it expanded," explained Mrs. Borowski."

The third music teacher could be hired at a future date, she said.

"I'm convinced we have a fine music program in the Park, but that doesn't mean I can't see how it could get better."

Canton to release names, addresses from local census

After much debate, and two separate motions, the Canton Township Board Tuesday night voted to release names and addresses from its census lists to homeowners' associations of subdivisions within the township which have parks.

Park committees of Planned Unit Developments (PUDs) want the information to bill subdivision residents for the annual fee for park maintenance.

A subdivision will be given only the names and addresses of residents living within their development, and must first sign a legal document pledging not to release that information to any outside individual or group.

A FEW homeowners' associations had requested names and addresses from the census recently completed by Canton Township, explained Supervisor Robert Greenstein, to bill residents for park obligations.

A couple of residents in the audience objected that this was an invasion of privacy and a violation of the confidentiality of the census.

Ordinance Officer Bruce Phillips, who supervised Canton's mid-decade census, explained that names and addresses could be obtained from a cross index, voter registration rolls, building permits, or from the county clerk's office.

All other information gathered by census takers will remain confidential, he added, because there was no way to connect anyone's name with other information obtained by census takers, except for a person's age. Phillips promised to remove age from the list of names and addresses given homeowners' associations.

THE SAME INFORMATION could be obtained by the associations, Phillips added, except it would take about 40 hours work. The release will be only for convenience as a favor to the associations, he added.

The first motion was made by Gerald Cheske, and supported by James Poole, to release only the names and addresses to PUD associations with parks.

Poole, however, then had second thoughts. He noted that PUDs comprise about 90 per cent of the township and once released the township gives up control over whether the lists would be released to anyone else.

Some residents objected that release of the lists would result in those residents being stuck with junk mailings because once one group was given the information the township would be hard-pressed to deny another request.

POOLE'S MOTION was defeated by a 3-2 vote with Poole and Robert Myers voting no. Carl Parsell and Brian Schwall were absent and five votes were needed for passage.

Myers then amended the motion to require a legal document be signed by the recipient of address lists pledging that the information be released to no one else. Cheske supported the second motion which passed 5-0.

Citizen group to hold meeting

Total Citizen's Power of Canton Township, a new non-partisan group designed to investigate township issues and residents' concerns, will hold its second meeting Wednesday, Aug. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Plymouth Canton High cafeteria.

Bruce Young, founder of the new group, expects presentation of the organization's constitution at the meeting for ratification purposes. Members will be asked to sign a pledge, promising noninvolvement of the group in partisan politics.

Young expects membership of the new group to reach 200 to 500 persons. More than 100 persons have contacted Young about the new group.

For additional information about Total Citizens' Power, persons should contact Young at Bruce's Used Car Liquidators, 44844 Michigan Avenue, Canton Township.

Fire tax drive shifting gears

The campaign for a tax increase for fire protection in Canton Township may reach a more formal stage in September with the main emphasis being directed by the Citizens Advisory Council (CAC).

That shift became apparent during Tuesday night's meeting of the Canton Township board when Bob Miller, president of the Northwest Canton Homeowners Association, asked for a shift in gears.

THE EFFORT for a tax to finance a new fire station, more equipment and personnel, was begun by an ad hoc committee formed by Betty Hamann.

Miller said his group decided it wouldn't work with the ad hoc committee but would work with the township board if an election should be held in May, 1976. Northwest Canton Homeowners at this point, he said, hasn't taken a position either way on the millage.

"In 1974 our taxes went up 25 per cent from four to five mills," commented Miller during the public discussion portion of the meeting.

"Some residents felt then that the extra mill would be used partly for more fire protection. The township's tax base has also been increasing and the township has not yet established its budget for 1976 fiscal year.

"We want to see the township budget, and fire department budget, for the coming year before more millage is requested. There is also the possibility of more state revenue because of the census Canton just completed."

Miller said his association would like the fire department to keep more detailed records of its fire runs to determine where to best spend the money for the largest reduction in fire loss.

Miller also volunteered the services of three fire protection professionals to work with any committee to establish criteria on how much the township should spend, and where, for fire protection.

WHEN SUPERVISOR Robert Greenstein asked what forum would be best to gain public input, Miller suggested the Citizens Advisory Council.

Greenstein agreed the CAC would be an "excellent forum," but said to date the homeowner associations have only submitted 13 names and the township hoped to have 20 members on the council.

Miller suggested a date be set for the CAC to begin studying the need for a fire millage, with or without its full complement.

Greenstein suggested that the board appoint members to the CAC at its Sept. 9 meeting and advised them to get started right away on the fire millage study.

MRS. HAMANN agreed that the CAC "would be a good way to go.

"We didn't use the CAC only because it wasn't available then and we wanted to go ahead with an effort for the millage. It must be remembered, though, that the millage isn't just for fire protection but for rescue runs also which is becoming more and more important as our population increases."

Greenstein expressed gratitude to Mrs. Hamann and others who started the campaign for the fire millage.

"The voters have turned down fire millage twice now and it wouldn't be right for the board to ask for another election. We wanted a move from the people to request the tax," he said.

AFTER THE public discussion, the fire chief reported that his department made 101 runs in July—of which 64 were rescue runs.

On the matter of more state revenue because of the mid-decade census Canton conducted on its own, Greenstein reported a bill has passed the School board eyes economic group's future

Members of the Plymouth Board of Education will wait until October to reassess the school district's participation in the Plymouth-Canton Development Commission (PCDC), an agency charged with the attraction of industry to the area.

Board members Monday voted 5-2 to table the participation issue until PCDC members submit a recommendation on continued existence of the agency after Oct. 1, when the current fiscal year ends.

School board Vice President Marcia Borowski, who acts as the school board's representitive on the PCDC, and President Marda Benson voted against tabling.

"I would like some discussion on this matter," said Mrs. Borowski. "We (the PCDC) need to know what to recommend. It's difficult to come up with a recommendation."

SOME PCDC members, which include the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Community School District and Plymouth and Canton townships, have questioned their continued participation in the agency.

The PCDC Board of Directors has agreed to continue existence of the agency until Oct. 1 and submit a recommendation on continued existence after that date.

The PCDC has shaved members' annual dues from $5,000 to $2,500 because of a reduced operating budget and empty executive director's chair, left vacant by the resignation of James McCartney.

The school district has already paid its $2,500 in dues.

"I would like to know where this body stands," said Mrs. Borowski. "Each governmental unit is reluctant to say, 'We're pulling out.' I'm not afraid to be the first."

Trustee Gary Mirto disagreed.

"I really feel that would be premature. At this point, we have an obligation to see if this can be salvaged and whether we can get a return on our investment. The position is we've paid, we're participating, and we wish input from our representative."

SCHOOL BOARD Secretary George Lawton favors an investigation into the continued effectiveness of the agency.

"The original thrust of the PCDC was to enhance the tax base of this community, primarily for this school district," he said. "In 1975-76, do the state aid law and the industrial base of this community still support the PCDC or have these changed, so our goals are no longer legitimate?

"I would hope we evaluate on a factual standpoint whether the goals and objectives can still be reached. If the PCDC board should recommend that the PCDC not continue, that doesn't necessarily signify failure on the part of the PCDC during the time it was operating."

Flying club told to quit trials on CEP campus

Members of a power-driven model airplane club and neighbors of the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) site, where club members practice, may soon get together to iron out their differences.

Members of the Plymouth school board Monday charged School Supt. John M. Hoben with arrangement of a meeting between members of the Flying Pilgrims Club and CEP neigbors, who have complained about about the club's activity at the site.

BOARD MEMBERS supported a cease and desist order, already issued by the district's administration, to stop the club's activities on the site until neighbors' complaints can be investigated.

Junior club members practicing for tournament competition may continue to use the site, according to a 6-1 vote of the board. Trustee E.J. McClendon dissented.

Hoben said he has received numerous complaints from CEP neighbors about the club's activities. Most complaints involve noise generated from the power-driven model airplanes. One neighbor, Hoben said, has complained about a model airplane which landed in his yard.

"If it's such a pressing matter, it seems strange the people who are complaining aren't here," said Bud Carrow, president of the club. "Our concern at the present time is when do we get our club back."

One club member noted the large student membership of the Flying Pilgrims Club.

"I think this is much more constructive than going out and smoking dope."

TRUSTEE GARY Mirto called the cease and desist order issued against the club "trial without confrontation."

"One side bitches. The other side gets penalized. I don't think the order should have been issued. It seems to me a bit unfair and hasty.

"Before people are ordered to cease activities, a showing has to be clearly made. I think that's elementary due process and fair play."

School Board Vice President Marcia Borowski responded: "I was impressed with the complaints. I think we owe it to the residents of this community to be good neighbors. It is my desire that our schools be an asset to the community."

Hoben said the club could use 20 acres of school district land at Ridge and Powell for practice purposes. Carrow said the CEP site is more desireable, because it is within walking distance of many younger members' homes.

Deer Creek may get Sheriff's patrol

Wayne County Sheriff deputies and State Police troopers will be asked by Canton Township to provide patrol services for Deer Creek apartments when needed.

The request was made by the Canton Board of Trustees Tuesday night following weeks of negotiations between the township administration and new management of Deer Creek.

Trustees also approved an appointment to the recreation advisory committee, approved preliminary plats for Sunflower Village and Brookside Village, tabled site plan approval for a party store, gave final plat approval for Hampton Court, and formally introduced a weed control ordinance.

SUPERVISOR Robert Greenstein reported that a number of problems have been ironed out with the new management at Deer Creek and that the apartments had asked for sheriff's patrol to supplement its private guards.

When a resident objected that patrol of Deer Creek might take away police protection for single-family subdivisions, Greenstein responded that Deer Creek residents have the same right to police protection as any other township resident.

Because the development is private property, he explained, a formal request for patrol services must be made to the township board and forwarded to Wayne County Sheriff's Department before patrol is allowed.

A resolution requesting the patrol passed 5-0.

THE BOARD also approved the appointment of Nancy Rentz, wife of the president of the Canton Jaycees, to what is now a seven-member recreation advisory committee.

Preliminary plat approval was given to Sunflower Viilage subdivision on both sides of Warren between Beck and Canton Center Roads.

Greenstein noted that this will be the first Planned Unit Development (PUD) in Canton without any multiple units in it. There will be four to five parks, clubhouses, swimming pools, tennis and basketball courts, and handball facilities, he added. All park facilities will be developed before 25 per cent of the residents move in, Greenstein added.

Preliminary plat approval was also given Brookside Village which is bounded by Cherry Hill, Haggerty, Palmer and Lotz roads. It is being built by Dick Lewiston of Practical Homes who is also developing Sunflower Village and will be the new developer of the Moceri project.

THE BOARD tabled request for site plan approval for a Cracker Barrel liquor and party store on the south side of Ford west of Haggerty.

The developer was asked to return to the Sept. 9 meeting of the board with a detailed landscaping plan to describe tree plantings along the side, a tree buffer along the rear, and a berm in front.

Another complication prompting the tabling is that a lawsuit is now pending over ownership of the property, and a ruling is expected Sept. 2.

The township previously had granted site plan approval to Pizza Hut to locate a business on the same property.

The board also voted to request a traffic light at Cherry Hill and Canton Center Road. Greenstein reported there has been 67 accidents at this intersection during the past five years and three to five fatalities.

The board received and filed a request for a Class C liquor license made by Ming Chin Kwan for a restaurant to be located at 5840 Sheldon in the Harvard Square shopping center

THE WEED ordinance formally was introduced after the board decided it would be superfluous to adopt it as an emergency ordinance.

Greenstein summarized the ordinance by saying it makes it unlawful for any property owner to allow noxious weeds to grow on a lot abutting residential property, a business location, or places where the public congregates.

Notices will be sent out by the township on June 1, July 1 and Aug. 1 of each year. If the owner doesn't cut the weeds, the township will contract to have the cutting done and charge the cost to the lot owner. Violation could also result in a $100 fine and-or 90 days in jail

Clerk John Flodin said "noxious" weeds are any which endanger health or cause injury, and added that the ordinance is directed toward unbuilt lots in subdivisions. It won't have an adverse affect on farmers, he added.

Trustee Robert Cheske asked if it could be adopted Tuesday night as an emergency ordinance, after hearing reports from residents of high weeds at intersections causing accidents.

Greenstein said that might be difficult to justify because the township was unable to enforce the ordinance until next spring.

"We are already into August and it is past the seeding time so we cannot solve the problem now of weeds spreading to sodded lawns," said Greenstein.

"The weeds are so high now that the costs of cutting would be staggering. It would also be unfair to property owners because they wouldn't be getting the notices provided for in the ordinance before being charged for cutting."

It was pointed out that many of the high weeds at intersections are on land owned by Wayne County and the county, by state law, is exempt from the ordinance.

Trustee James Poole cautioned that an expert weed enforcement officer was needed. Flodin agreed caution was needed because ecologists will be concerned about destroying the cover for pheasants and other animals, and about upsetting the ecosystem.

Greenstein added that with only one ordinance officer, Canton doesn't have the enforcment capabilities now to control weeds. He expressed hope that Canton might be able to use federal employment funds in the spring to hire a weed enforcement officer.

Introduction of the weed ordinance was approved by a 5-0 vote. It will now be published and formally adopted at a future board meeting.

Board to define use of Canton recreation hall

The Canton Township Board is expected to adopt a policy soon defining who will be allowed to use the new township recreation building.

During the interim, trustees Tuesday night voted to allow the supervisor, clerk and treasurer to grant permission to groups to use the recreation building within general guidelines set during discussion at the meeting.

The new recreation facility, a complete renovation of a former store, is at Michigan Avenue and Geddes Road. It is close to being completed and will soon be open for use, reports Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

THE FORMER recreation facility had been rented for nominal fees by residents for weddings, anniversaries, and private parties, he noted.

What prompted the policy, he said, was a request from the Canton Jaycettes to hold an art sale in the new facility. In the past, members have held their art sale in Plymouth.

"I just don't think the building should be used for private social events," said Greenstein, "but we need some guidance from the board.

When completed, the facility will house the township recreation department and be used as a senior citizen meeting place as well as for other township recreation department activities. The facility also will be used by the township board, or another township government commission, as a meeting place when necessary.

Greenstein also suggested it could be used by homeowners' associations or civic groups such as the Canton Jaycees or Lions, or the Red Cross, when not needed by the township.

CLERK JOHN FLODIN said board policy was needed because the former recreation hall had been used by church groups for religious services, by Scouts and 4-H groups, as well as by residents for private parties.

Flodin added that the recreation department might have an increased need for the building because it is becoming more difficult to schedule recreation activities on evenings in winter months in the schools because of expanded adult education programs.

"We won't be able to satisfy everybody, so we might as well have a formal set of rules approved by the entire board."

The board voted 5-0, with Carl Parsell and Brian Schwall absent, to give Greenstein, Flodin and Parsell direction to establish rules for board adoption at a future meeting and to give approval during the intermim as the three administrators see fit.

Plymouth board delays hockey implementation

A large question mark continues to hang over the Plymouth Community School District's proposed hockey programs.

School board members Monday unanimously agreed to refer a motion of Trustee Joseph Gray, deferring implementation of the hockey program for one year, to the administration for study.

The administration will study the impact of a delayed hockey program on young persons and report its finding to board members, according to a motion made by Secretary George Lawton.

GRAY QUESTIONED implementation of the hockey program this year because of inadequate time to prepare for it.

Only 12 hockey games—about half of the games usually scheduled in hockey—are outlined, he noted, while practice ice time is set for 5:30 each morning.

"Are we expecting kids to get up at three in the morning and then go to school?" he asked. "I also question to some extent the people running the program.

"The big problem to me is how it's being implemented. When programs are being put in, they should be put in properly. I don't want to see hockey get into a bad deal because of a bad start."

Trustee Gary Mirto, who supported Gray's original motion to defer implementation of the hockey program, objected to delays in implementing the proposed intramural program.

"I've said that if there were any problems with the intramural program, I wouldn't support the hockey program," Mirto said. "There are some building principals who wouldn't touch an intramural program with a 10-foot pole.

"Here we have an opportunity to provide leverage—the whole deal or none at all. If Gray would like to delay implementation of the hockey program for his reasons, I would support it for mine."

ACCORDING TO School Supt. John M. Hoben, board members have turned down two intramural recommendations, proposed by building principals.

The administration is charged with implementing a $36,000 athletic program, which includes hockey; girls' golf, tennis and gymnastics; and an elementary school intramural program.

"I found myself in a difficult position as lone dissenter on the hockey issue sometime ago," said board Treasurer Tom Yack. "I've seen no administrative reluctance to implement the intramural program. I speak for the referring action."

Said Vice President Marcia Borowski: "I think it's absolutely imperative that elementary principals begin working immediately on a program for all youngsters."

LAWTON WANTS the administration to study the impact of a delayed hockey program on young persons who have planned on participating.

"It seems odd that the board be so intent on this program, when we have a new special education program," he said. "I would hope if we're going to this intent, we'd be intent on all our new programs."

Responded Gray: "I'm sure there are other programs we should look at, but we have to take them one at a time."

All provide neighbor-to-neighbor service when it is needed on a short-term basis. This kind of service involves emergency babysitting, transportation to a hospital, a hot meal in a crisis situation and other such assistance.

Each FISH group has a telephone number, and a call to that number will bring referral to one of the volunteers in a position to help.

Plymouth team wins title

A Plymouth Slow Pitch women's league team won the district championship this past weekend to earn the right to try for the state title this weekend in Mount Clemens.

The Vettese Building Co. squad, which had a perfect 14-0 regular league record in play sponsored by Plymouth Parks and Recreation, gained the district title with three victories Sunday in South Lyon.

They first gained a 12-0 victory over a team from the Canton Slow Pitch Women's League and then won back-to-back contests with South Lyon, 25-1 and 18-12.

The winning pitcher in all three district games was Phylis Cunningham, who has also earned all 14 league victories this summer.

Although there were many triples and doubles, the power onslought of the Vettese sluggers was led by Peggy Boyce, Jean Pyle and Colleen Moore—all of whom hit home runs.

The state competition will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

W-W District names new Glenn principal

By DENNY COFFMAN

Wayne-Westland Supt. of Schools Timothy Dyer Monday announced five additions to his administrative "cabinet." The appointments were unanimously approved 5-0 by the Board of Education (Vincent Petitpren and Gerard McGrath were absent).

According to Dyer, the appointments will help him attempt to "give fewer people more work to save the district money."

Gary Matsche, 26, was appointed principal of Stevenson Junior High School. Matsche, a Wayne resident, graduated from Eastern Michigan University, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1970 and a master's degree in educational administration in 1974.

He is a doctoral candidate at Wayne State University.

Matsche had been a teacher and assistant principal at Stevenson from 1970-74. During that period, he also served as track coach, football coach and cafeteria supervisor.

John Harrison, 41, was named principal of John Glenn High School. Harrison, a Dearborn resident, graduated from the University of Michigan, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1956 and a master's degree in education in 1960.

Harrison taught at Wayne Memorial, Marshall and Glenn schools. He had been assistant director of continuing education in the district since 1969. He also served as a debate coach at Glenn.

Bernard LaPorte, 28, was named principal of Monroe Elementary. Laporte, a Plymouth resident, graduated from Olivet College, where he obtained a bachelor's degree, and Eastern Michigan, where he received a master's degree.

He taught at Tinkham Elementary since 1969. He also served as director of the community school while at Tinkham.

Dennis Connolly, 38, was appointed assistant principal of Marshall Junior High School. Connelly, a Livonia resident, graduated from the University of Michigan, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1959, and a master's degree in guidance and counseling in 1963.

Connelly taught at West, Marshall, Nankin Mills and Glenn schools. His most recent position was at Glenn.

Marjorie Mirchell was named supervisor of the Norris School. She is a Detroit resident.

She graduated from Oberlin College with a bachelor's degree in 1964 and from the University of Michigan with a master's degree in special education.

She holds an elementary and special education teaching certificate and most recently was unit program director for the Wayne County Association for the Retarded. She had formerly been a classroom instructor for the severely retarded at the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

CAC to be asked to spearhead tax

House to allow more revenues to municipalities whose population have increased between U.S. census years.

Canton's population has grown from 11,000 from the 1970 census to 27,000 residents today. If the House bill becomes law, Canton will be one of the first in Michigan to benefit, Greenstein said.

State Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland), whose district includes Canton Township, says the bill would raise Canton's state revenue allotment from $22.37 to $24.62 per capita.

Greenstein said this could mean Canton would get almost $271,450 in state revenues—an increase of $25,270 from what was received in fiscal 1974-75.

The census cost $7,878 of which Canton paid $337 with the balance coming from federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds.

Greenstein said the bill has been sent to the Senate where it is now being considered. He urged residents to write Sen. William Faust (D-Westland), whose district includes Canton, to urge passage of HB4641.

Schools save on tax note

The Plymouth Schools will be spending less this year when borrowing $5.6 million to pay the bills until taxes are collected in December.

School board members approved a bid of 4.29 per cent interest on the note offered by National Bank of Detroit. This year's loan will cost the district $162,161, a substantial savings over last year's 6.64 per cent loan.

While the cost of borrowing the money over the next six months has been reduced over last year's figures, business manager Ray Hoedel explained the board would be receiving less interest income on its short-term investments while it is holding on to the money.

Shooting stars brighten night skies in August

The annual celestial display known as the Perseid meteor shower will enliven the night skies of August, according to University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

"Also called 'shooting stars,' the meteors will rain down on earth for about three weeks, reaching a peak of frequency on August 10th or 11th," Prof. Losh says, noting that on these nights they may flash across the sky at the rate of one per minute.

Named for the constellation Perseus from which it seems to emanate, the meteor shower is quite predictable because the earth crosses its orbit at the same time every year.

"A METEOR that appears as bright as the North Star is probably a tiny bit of iron and stone no larger than a grain of sand. They strike our atmosphere at tremendous velocities, the resultant friction causing them to burn very brightly. Most are completely consumed before reaching the ground."

She points out that the best time to look for the glowing objects is after midnight, "when we are riding on the forward side of the earth as it moves along its orbit around the sun, thus exposing us to 'direct hits' as well as passing meteors." Meteors of the morning hours are likely to burn brighter and bluer because of the greater velocities created by head-on collisions.

IN THE FAR northwestern portion of the Milky Way, which continues to dominate the summer sky, Perseus can be found.

"By tracing a giant 'K' in Perseus, one may follow the upward arm of this letter to an especially interesting eclipsing binary star named Algol, or 'The Demon,' " Prof. Losh points out.

Algol consists of two stars, one light, the other dark, revolving around each other. For 2½ days Algol does not change in birghtness, but then, as the dark star passes in front of the light one, it dims significantly in a period of just five hours. The original brilliance returns in yet another five hours. The change in brightness can be observed with the naked eye.

From Perseus the Milky Way can be followed all the way to the southwest and the constellation Sagittarius.

"East of Sagittarius is Capricornus, the 'Sea Goat,' which does not look the least bit like the goat for which it was named, but rather resembles a cocked hat resting on its crown," Prof. Losh says. Believed to be one of the oldest star groups, Capricornus contains a pair of stars in its upper right corner that help in identification.

AUGUST has a conspicuous dearth of planets to observe during the early evening hours, she says.

"Venus, the beautiful 'evening star' gracing the western sky for the last nine months, is rapidly disappearing, and will pass the sun on the 27th. Thereafter, it will emerge as a morning planet."

The bright Jupiter is rising in the east around 11 p.m., and Saturn remains a morning planet rising two hours before the sun. Saturn can be located south of Castor and Pollux, the two bright stars composing the heavenly twins of Gemini.

Appearing about 1 a.m., Mars will be found slightly above the star Aldebaran in the constellation Taurus. Both objects are red; Mars is about twice as bright as Aldebaran.

Plymouth Township copies innovation

Effective Sept. 15, whenever an application for rezoning of land is made to the planning commission and or to the Plymouth Township Board, a four-by-eigt foot sign must be erected in full public view along the site of the rezoning 30 days prior to a public hearing on the rezoning.

This new resolution was passed by the township board Tuesday night following a lengthy discussion among trustees.

The resolution, which is similar to the one passed recently in Canton Township, had been tabled at the board's last meeting so Clerk Helen Richardson could obtain more information, such as a 30-day posting period, the size of the sign and what could be done in case there was no frontage on a road.

She explained that at the time the planning commission approves a public hearing on rezoning, the dates for publication are established after asking the applicant if he can meet the 30-day posting period.

THE RESOLUTION, as passed by the Plymouth Township board, says:

"In accordance with Section 125.285 M.C.L.A., as amended, the following administrative regulations shall be followed whenever an application for rezoning of land is made.

"Said regulations shall be a prerequisite to the right of public hearing thereupon:

"1. A four-by-eight foot sign shall be erected in full public view along road frontage 30 days prior to a public hearing on the property which is site of the rezoning provided, however, that if the property to be rezoned is situated on two streets or roads abutting the subject property, then two signs, one for each road, shall be required.

"2. Such signs shall be removed after the public hearing or if said public hearing is adjourned, the date of the public hearing shall be changed upon the face of the sign.

"3. Said sign shall be exempt from the zoning ordinance governing the sign ordinance of the Township of Plymouth as mandated sign provided, however, that a temporary sign permit shall be obtained.

"4. The sign shall read as follows:

"(a) At the top of the sign, the words shall appear, 'This property proposed to be rezoned.'

"(b) The sign shall contain the name of the real party in interest asking for the zoning change.

"(c) The sign shall contain what the present zoning is at the time of the petition.

"(d) The sign shall contain the proposed or requested zoning sought and amount of acreage involved (map with dimensions).

"(e) The sign shall contain the proposed use of the land if the zoning is successful.

"(f) The date and place of the public hearing on the rezoning.

"5. It shall be the duty of the petitioner to erect, maintain and remove said sign; removal shall be within three days after public hearing.

"6. Proof copy shall be submitted to the township supervisor or clerk for approval of content prior to erection of sign.

"7. Township of Plymouth shall be exempted from these provisions."

Milliken vetoes strike bill

By DENNY COFFMAN

A double-edged sword of misunderstanding and misconception killed the teacher strike bill, according to legislators, school administrators and teacher union leaders.

The bill, recently vetoed, as promised by Gov. William Milliken, would have permitted a short teacher strike and imposed binding arbitration on school boards and teachers. The bill also set penalties for both, if the school year were shortened because of contract disputes.

But Rep. John Markes (D-Westland), whose district includes part of Livonia, said the governor came closer to signing the bill than most people realize.

"The governor had the bill for some time before he vetoed it," said Markes. "It was so close it's hard to believe.

"I think the governor would have gone along if we had dropped the number of days the teachers could strike without a loss of pay to seven or so. The governor painted himself into a corner."

He said the Legislature is more "keenly aware" of public opinion, and now feels it must get a bill through.

REP. THOMAS Brown (D-Westland), whose district includes Canton Township and part of Plymouth, said he expected the veto but felt the bill would have been better than Public Act 379, which makes it illegal for teachers to strike.

"The bill would have prevented sympathy strikes which the Michigan Education Association (MEA) had threatened last year, even after contracts in some of the districts had been ratified. I think the bill has been totally misunderstood," said Brown.

He said he doesn't think the Legislature has enough votes to override the governor's veto.

DAVID McMAHON, MEA president, said the MEA had supported the House version but lobbied against the final Senate version.

"We're not disappointed at the veto," he said. "We'll be getting together with other organizations such as police and fire unions and AFSCME (American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes) to make a new proposal."

McMahon explained MEA objections: "The bill requires the teachers to go on strike before they can get binding arbitration. Some teachers might want to go directly to binding arbitration, but the way the bill is written they would have to go on a four-week strike first. That's foolish. They should be allowed to go directly into arbitration."

He said he did not believe the veto would lead to a round of school strikes in the fall.

"This is simply not true. I expect fewer strikes because there is no state aid bill yet. Teachers don't know what to go after financially, because they don't know how much money their districts will receive. The economic recession will have an impact, too."

JOHN MELCHOR, who was chief negotiator for the Garden City Education Association when that district faced a strike last year, said he was not disappointed by the veto.

"The Legislature dragged its feet for six months," he said. "The bill was pro-management. It was an attempt by management to get control of bargaining. It punished teachers.

"But the present law (PA 379) is inequitable. It is grossly inadequate. At least the strike bill would have legalized teacher strikes.

"I think there was a lot of misconception about the bill."

Rep. Robert Geake (R-Northville), whose district includes most of Livonia, said the veto disappointed him. Geake, who voted for the bill, said it was an improvement over the "largely unworkable law" that now exists (PA 379).

"However," I understand the governor's desire to limit teacher strikes to the very minimum."

Geake said he believes teacher strike legislation is "dead for this year."

BRACKEN SNOW, superintendent of Garden City schools, which experienced a lengthy strike that extended the school year into the last days of June, said school boards and teachers now are subject to "the evils of Public Act 379, which leaves things in the status quo.

"Both sides are in the same relative positions as before. It all depends now on the employers and employes and whether they will be more rational."

Snow said the Garden City Board of Education had favored the strike bill, but only with the Keith and Plawecki amendments, both of which curtailed the permissible strike period. Neither amendment made it to the governor's desk.

THE LENGTH of strike and the penalties involved were where the greatest amount of misunderstanding prevailed, according to Markes, Melchor and Brown.

"All the district would have had to do to shorten a teachers' strike would be to start school later in the fall, leaving the teachers less time at the other end of the semester to make up for striking time," said Markes.

"It's a lot of malarky," said Melchor, referring to the so-called free strike period. "Teachers would not be paid for two of the four weeks of their strike, and they could only receive pay for the other two weeks of the strike if time were allotted to make them up at the end of the school year."

Brown agreed that teachers would not receive pay if they did not "deliver" 180 days of classroom instruction.

"The bill would have at least resulted in children being educated without jeopardizing their vacation time. After all, this is a lot different than dealing with garbage men or street maintenance people."

Seances can be tricky

Some time ago, "Witch Watch" presented a column about ghosts. As a result, I am still receiving letters about hauntings, both real and imaginary.

I have checked out several of these and have added quite a few new ghost stories to my collection. But often, my letters come, not from those who are haunted, but from those who are not and would like to be.

One of the questions most frequently asked by readers is: "How can I hold a successful seance?"

There are several different types of seances. The most common type, the one often seen in old movies, employs a professional medium who sits with other participants and receives messages for them from spirits or spirit guides.

I am not suggesting that all professional mediums are phonies, but surely you can see the possibilities such a drama might offer to a person inclined to trickery.

I know of one grief-stricken widower who employed such a medium to contact his dead wife. His wife spoke and told him he should marry again. When he said he knew of no one to marry, the ghost of his dead wife suggested the medium.

They got married, but they did not live happily ever after. In fact, six weeks later she disappeared, along with more than $6,000 of his life's savings from the bank account he had so generously made joint.

I once met a lady who told me she had a message for me from my dead grandmother. She described Grandma to a "T," called me by my grandma's pet name for me as a child, and told me something that no one knew but my grandmother and myself.

Now, this was pretty heavy stuff. A lot of people would have been convinced she was communicating with a ghost. I don't believe this lady was dishonest. I believe she was a very gifted clairvoyant, and, although she sincerely believed she was communicating with spirts, I believe she was receiving these impressions from my own sub-conscious mind.

She told me things no one else knew. But I knew them. Her message from Grandma was what I wanted to hear. And I'm sure that it all came from my own mind. For if Grandma wanted to get in touch, I'm sure she would find a way to do it directly, not through a medium.

If you wish to hold a seance with a professional medium, do it as an interesting experiment and with an open mind. But, don't believe all you see and hear. Pay one price (for the entertainment), and leave your checkbook and the rest of your money at home.

How about handling your own seance? There are two kinds of home seances with which you might like to experiment. I'll give directions for these in next week's column.

L. Brooks Patterson: Candidate on the rise

By TIM RICHARD

Bill Milliken, Max Fisher and that crowd will call the shots on whom the Republican Party nominates for the U.S. Senate next year, but after that they had better learn to deal with L. Brooks Patterson.

The Oakland County prosecutor is far from from being the darling of the GOP hierarchy. At the level of the unpaid Republican Party workers, however, Brooks Patterson is the hottest thing the party has had since the gubernatorial days of George W. Romney.

Patterson has given no solid evidence he might be interested in a 1976 Senate nomination, but clearly he could give the Establishment candidate (probably U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch) a healthy scare.

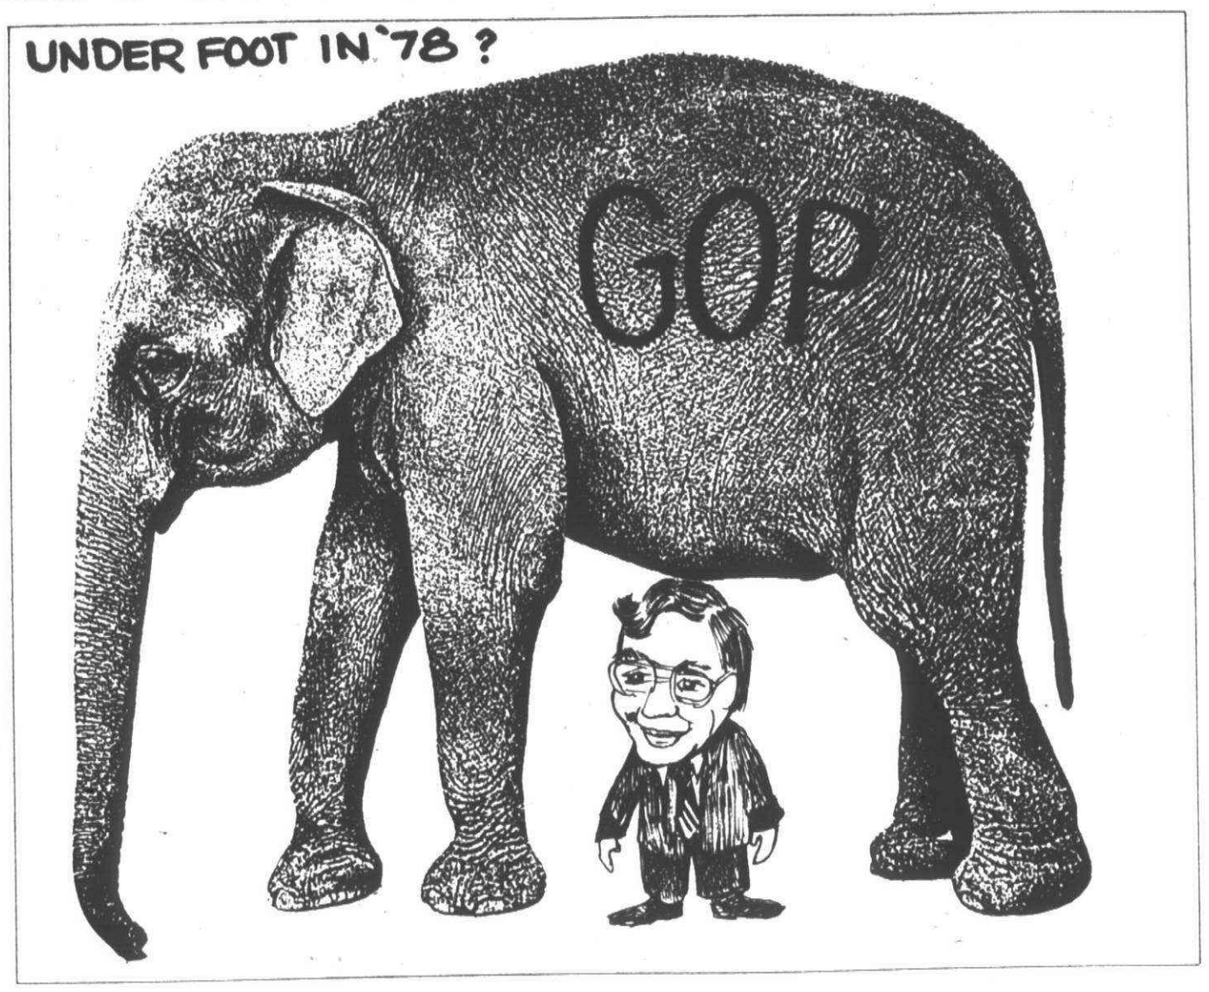
The election after that—1978, when Patterson will be just under 40—will be the time for him to move. Governor? Lieutenant governor? Attorney general? Whatever his choice, he'll be a major force to contend with.

LAST WEEK, Patterson was up in God's country, the upper peninsula cities of Escanaba and Marquette. He got superb radio and newspaper coverage.

From the public prints, you find out quickly that the UP knows what crime and drug problems are, so Patterson wasn't viewed as just an urban specialist.

Like most persons with an Establishment mentality, this observer feels uncomfortable around L. Brooks Patterson. His background is with NAG, the well-nicknamed National Action Group that attracted many zanies. Patterson was its attorney, and not a very successful one at that because the Tri-County Citizens group was the one that had the courtroom impact in the school busing case.

Then as prosecutor, Patterson came up with some ideas on welfare reform that smacked of something less than Christian charity. You didn't have to be a bleeding heart liberal to be a little scared of that plan.



BUT PATTERSON deserves his due, and the plain truth is that he has a load of good qualities that his fellow Republicans would do well to emulate.

He senses the public's gut worries and tries to respond to them with specific programs.

He communicates clearly. He's easy to cover. His points are expressed briefly and lucidly, and few newsmen fail to grasp them. He's so good at it that he practically writes your "lead" for you. For example, nearly every newsman uses that remark about the parole system—"We're being robbed, raped and mugged by the same persons over and over"—near the top of the story or early in the broadcast tape.

He does his research well. He's intellectually far more interesting to cover than (say) a George Wallace, who uses the same vague, loaded generalizations constantly.

Working newsmen say he returns phone calls, unlike his predecessor.

WORKING REPUBLICAN delegates at last winter's state convention gave Patterson a more enthusiastic response than Gov. Milliken got. Patterson was the only person with platform amendments who was invited to the podium to deliver them.

He stampeded the convention that time, not with the mere "cross of gold" oratory of a Bryan but with a pinpointed plan to solve a problem.

The delegates were far from unanimous in cheering Patterson, yet there was no doubting the width and breadth of his appeal. These weren't just the Durant and Huber Republicans from the fringe cheering. This was a majority.

Since then, Patterson has been making the rounds of the party dinners and the luncheon clubs. He's building—no question.

Myself, I skipped Brooksy's Marquette visitation, although I was in that neck of the woods, and checked up on an old favorite, Archie's tavern in the hamlet of Christmas. The lady there keeps a pet skunk, and one of the patrons carries his pet snakes with him.

The real Teamster story goes uncovered by media

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

No national news story in my memory has had such a heavy local suburban angle as the Jimmy Hoffa disappearance.

Machus Red Fox Restaurant where he was last seen is at Maple and Telegraph. Labor consultant Leonard Schultz, whose name has run high in the story, lives in Franklin. The famous salmon which spilled blood in the car driven by Chuckie O'Brien was on its way to Teamster leader Robert Holmes' house in Farmington Hills.

Because we are a twice weekly local newspaper, we could not compete with the TV networks or daily newspapers in live breaking coverage. But our reporters were out on the story, picking up the local angles and bits of suburban color of interest to our readers.

READING ALL this coverage increasingly convinces me that the story's real significance goes far beyond the questions of whether Mr. Hoffa is dead or alive or who did it to him. It strikes to the network of shadowy and sinuous relationships between the Teamsters Union and the Mafia, which is now so prevelant as to constitute an accepted fact of life in this country.

Money from pension funds finds its way into murky business deals, without documentation or security. Cars are bombed, without evident motive. Problems are solved by threats or coercion, without recourse to law.

Few such things are ever proven in court; many are alleged in a climate of secrecy and fear that allows them to grow; all are living monuments to the worrisome fact that evil-doing is an accepted way of life in some segments of our country.

In this context, the Hoffa story may well turn out to be the functional equivalent of the Watergate story, which with a sudden yank jerked away the mask of secrecy from stupid and criminal and evil activities in government.

THIS WILL only happen, however, if two groups perform their duties to the nation.

First, the politicians and lawyers and judges must have the guts to speak out, the will to investigate and the force to prosecute. So far, one noticeable thing about the Hoffa story is the reluctance of any of these groups to approach it at the end of anything less than a 10-foot pole.

Second, the media must begin to give the subtle but explosive story of the Mafia's influence in America and its relationship with the Teamsters the kind of intensive coverage it deserves.

It is amazing to me that the national media day after day devote strong coverage to allegations that the CIA may have eavesdropped on the phone calls of some citizens who have been possibly up to something, and do not do the same thing to allegations of corrupt dealings between the Mafia and the Teamsters.

In large part, this is so because the national media are headquartered in New York and Washington, where perspective on what is significant is quite different than it is anywhere else in the country.

But what may be a local story in Michigan with a heavy suburban angle in these newspapers is in fact a national news story of enormous importance. If the professionals in my field cannot cover it with the time and effort it deserves, they will have forever made silly and absurd the great service they did the nation in Watergate.

Conspicuous decoys provide an ounce of prevention

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure is the old adage.

The real purpose of good law enforcement is to deter people from committing crimes.

There should be little joy on the part of anyone about the arrest and conviction of a criminal if, in fact, his crime against society could have been prevented.

These are all heady, theoretical statements, but they are quite applicable.

Years ago, many of our police departments drove unmarked police cars. The theory was that somehow they could sneak up and capture the criminals before the criminals knew what was happening to them.

IN FACT, at the time, most crimes in the area were breakings and enterings, which are very difficult to detect from a moving vehicle.

At that time I staged a mini-campaign among many police departments in the area to mark their vehicles as conspicuously as possible, because this makes people think there are more police cars in a given area than there really are, and it deters them from involving themselves in an anti-social act.

Today, this is no longer a problem because most police departments in our area now drive black and white or clearly marked police cars with a multiple of lights across the top.

BUT IF MARKED police cars are a deterrent to crime, then the Birmingham police department has gone one step further.

In every police department, obviously, not every police car is manned 24 hours a day. In most cases the unused police cars are parked at the police headquarters.

The Birmingham police have started what they call a decoy system where any police car that is not being used is parked by the side of a well-travelled road with a radar speed detector hanging out the window and left unmanned.

The result is that drivers see the police car and are reminded of the law and become more careful drivers.

THE BIRMINGHAM police are also parking their unused non-manned cars in shopping center parking lots which, obviously, becomes a deterrent to anyone who might be thinking of committing a crime in that area.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The ideal is that there be no crime, and this occurs only if there are sufficient deterrents to convince human beings that it is not worth the risk of violating the law.

The marked cars are a plus, and perhaps the other police departments in the area ought to think about the Birmingham decoy plan.

State Police back decision

Editor:

The Michigan State Police Command Officers' Association (MSPCOA) represents about two-thirds of the sergeants and lieutenants in the Michigan State Police. Perhaps represent is the wrong word, as there is no collective bargaining for employes of state government in Michigan. These officers, above the rank of trooper, have gained pay raises totaling four per cent or less over the last three years. Cost of living allowances have just been granted and our first COLA check will arrive in either September or October.

The MSPCOA was formed three years ago. On July 11, 1975, 2½ weeks prior to Jimmy Hoffa disappearing, ballots were sent to the 265 dues-paying members. At that time we stated that the ballots would be counted on Aug. 4, 1975 and the results made known.

Members could vote to join the following unions: American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME); Service Employes International Union (SEIU) or the Teamsters. They could also vote to join no union or to have the MSPCOA remain an independent employe association which employed the services of the Teamsters Union. Two hundred and twenty-nine ballots were returned by the deadline.

The results were: AFSCME, seven votes or 3.05%; SEIU, 14 votes or 6.11%; Teamsters (join), 22 votes or 9.6%; Teamsters (affiliate), 158 votes or 68.99%; none, 26 votes or 11.35%; invalid returns, two or 0.87%.

Of the votes returned 78.6 per cent were for the Teamsters. Why? How did this ever come to be in the Michigan State Police? Was there any forewarning to the executives of the State Police or the governor? Could this situation have been avoided?

These questions should be responded to if Shelly Guggenheim is interested in investigative reporting rather than emotional editorializing.

Construction trucks endanger lives

Editor:

We all in this area appreciate the haste in which the main streets and superhighways are being completed, however, I do not believe that it requires construction equipment being operated at excessive speeds. Has anyone else seen a tandum dirt truck going through a red light at 45 to 50 mph, endangering the lives of the citizens of this community?

Only by my astute observation have I avoided my demise. Several times in the past few months, as the first car waiting for a traffic light to change either at Farmington Road, Schoolcraft or Newburgh, I have observed these trucks run red lights at excessive speeds and race other trucks, endangering vehicles having the right-of-way.

We should request our police force to be more diligent in its surveillance of this equipment operating on our thoroughfares so that we might avoid a catastrophic accident. I sincerely believe that the road work can be accomplished in the allotted time, even if this equipment is operated prudently within the legal limits of our traffic laws.

Editor:

I hope I'm not too late, but congratulations to Bob Woodring on his wonderful, delightful picture of Victor Golden III, the seven-year-old wrestler from Canton Township.

When I saw the shot of Victor "getting mean" (all 45 pounds of him!), it made my day. The picture appeared in the sports section on June 26.

My thanks for making that part of the paper a joy to look at and read.

'Total Woman' is grasping at straws

Editor:

After reading Marie Van Vleck's letter in the Observer & Eccentric, I can't help but wonder if she didn't misinterpret Schoolcraft's decision not to approve the "How to be a wife" courses. Certainly none of the people who oppose the "Total Woman" and "Fascinating Womanhood" (FW) courses feels that being a good wife and mother is downgrading. Far from it. It is for this reason they decided not to approve these courses.

If you feel a course that teaches a woman who is mad at her husband to "stick out her lower lip and pout, because he thinks it's cute"(FW), or "a woman should not have too much education" (FW), or a wife's "role is a submissive role," is teaching women to be good wives and mothers—fine. I feel these courses are not only downgrading to women, but men also.

Marabel Morgan in "The Total Woman" also states: "...a wife's role is one of submission. She must accept her husband's every action and decision and cater to his wishes; she must admire his strength, appreciate his affection and adapt to his autocratic leadership." This is communication?

Are you wives so insecure in your sexuality and confidence in yourselves as an important human beings, that you have to resort to playing cheap games to save your marriages? Isn't this grasping at straws?

Just for the record, I am also a wife and a mother and have a career.

'Total Woman' for prostitutes

Editor:

I applaud Schoolcraft College for deciding not to offer classes based on the books "The Total Woman" and "Fascinating Womanhood". These books do not teach women how to be wives, but how to be prostitutes, and I hardly feel it would be appropriate for Schoolcraft to sponsor a class of this type.

ERA would lead to attendant chaos

Editor:

Little attention has been paid to Section 2 of the proposed 27th Amendment to the United States Constitution (ERA—the Equal Rights Amendment).

It reads: "The Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article."

What we as individuals don't need is more federal social legislation and its subsequent supporting federal bureaucracies.

Those so absolutely convinced of the goodness of Amendment 27 should more carefully consider the attendant chaos surely to follow from federal enforcement of this amendment.

If any remedy for sex discrimination should be implemented, it should be done at the state and local level, and deal with cases specifically, rather than the sledge hammer method of constitutional amendments.

Firecrackers cause injury

Editor:

I am daily annoyed by the noise of firecrackers in my neighborhood. Firecrackers are against the law, and it is hard for me to believe that so many parents are either ignorant of the law or are permitting their children to break the law.

Furthermore, they are permitting their children to risk bodily injury. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness warns that all fireworks are dangerous. Three thousand injuries were caused in the U.S. by fireworks last year.

A few inconsiderate people can ruin a neighborhood by failing to properly supervise their children's activities. Some of these activities consist of breaking school windows, which cost Livonia taxpayers more than $100,000 to repair last year.

Do you know where your children are right now and what they are doing?

Much history in cemeteries

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

This chapter in the history of Plymouth concerns the cemeteries in the community where, to borrow a line from Thomas Gray, the forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

In pioneer days, the family graveyard was usually located near the settler's home so he could keep an eye on it. The late Ada Murray, librarian in Plymouth in the 1950s, said there was great fear of grave robbers in the early days of the community.

"The medical school at Ann Arbor was new and cadavers were hard to get for dissection," wrote Mrs. Murray in a paper she presented to the Plymouth Historical Society, Sept. 14, 1950. "A good price was paid for bodies, and no questions asked."

MRS. MURRAY remembered some family burial plots she saw in Plymouth and in the township when she was a girl. There was one between the Chase and Heeney farms (later the House of Correction property) on Five Mile. Others were the Shearer, Kinyon, Taft and Thayer plots.

Mrs. Murray described what took place at funerals in pioneer days. "Friends and neighbors came in, laid out the body and made the shrouds. The shrouds were a length of white or pastel colored wool cloth–a straight piece of material cut and folded or draped in soft lines."

There were very few flowers. The undertaker usually supplied (and reused for later funerals) a sheaf of wheat tied with lavender ribbon. On one occasion, recalled by a friend of Mrs. Murray's, Mr. Bassett, an early undertaker in Plymouth decorated the casket of a girl from a poor family with a spray of apple blossoms.

If burial was to be in a family plot, the pall bearers carried the coffin to the grave, which was excavated by the neighbors. If burial was to be in a cemetery, a black hearse drawn by a team of black horses was used. The hearse was high, with glass sides. It had black urns at the four corners. If the deceased was an adult, the urns bore black plumes; if a child, the plumes were colored.

THE FIRST cemetery in the village was located on Church Street, behind the Presbyterian Church. The land for the cemetery and the church was donated by William Starkweather.

Called "the old Presbyterian Cemetery," it was opened in 1828, three years after the settlers arrived. Additional lands were added to the grounds in 1853, 1859 and 1862. On July 6, 1874, the trustees of the church deeded the 2½ acre cemetery to the Village of Plymouth to be used by the entire community. The deed stipulated that the land would revert to the church whenever it ceased to be a burying ground.

The Presbyterian Cemetery was used as a community graveyard until 1915 when the village fathers decided to close it as a "health measure." The land reverted to the church, which promptly deeded it back to the village for use as a park, provided that the bodies in the cemetery be moved to Riverside Cemetery at village expense.

Some, including village President Louis Hillmer, who had relatives buried in the cemetery objected and refused to permit transfer of the remains. Most did, however, and many bodies were moved.

On Dec. 11, 1936, when workers were excavating for the new Presbyterian Church, being built to replace the one destroyed by fire in January of that year, the Plymouth Mail reported that parts of 35 to 40 skeletons were uncovered. Some were believed to be of Indian remains.

ANOTHER OLD cemetery, located in the city limits, but not used for many years, is the Plymouth Village Cemetery, sometimes called "the Old Baptist Cemetery," or "the old York Street Cemetery."

Silas Farmer, in 1890, called it "the North Plymouth Cemetery." It was founded in 1845, when the Plymouth Village Society, whose members included anyone who bought a lot, purchased for $75 about one acre of land from Bethuel Noyes, the first president of the village. The cemetery is located at the end of Pearl Street, east of York, and north of what later was to become the C & O railroad tracks. Some 120 lots were originally plotted.

The Plymouth Village Cemetery Society went out of existence in 1891, turning the cemetery over to the village for maintenance. Ada Murray was told that Miss Ella Shattuck was the last person to be buried there. Some of the bodies were removed to Riverside Cemetery, but many still remain in the small graveyard. It was fenced in and the gate locked many years ago due to repeated acts of vandalism.

Until 1931, the old cemetery was cared for by Donaldson Craig, who relinquished the task in that year to the municipality with the request that it replace old markers that had been overturned. How Craig got possession of the cemetery, which had been turned over to the village in 1891, is unknown but the warranty deed which he gave to the city is dated March 4, 1937.

THE PLYMOUTH MAIL on Aug. 18, 1931, quoted Craig as saying that the Plymouth Village Cemetery was the place where Indians conducted worship services before a stone altar (see chapter one).

Craig reported that beside the many early settlers who are buried in this cemetery, there are soldiers who fought in the Black Hawk War; members of the military company established in Plymouth in 1827; and nine soldiers who fought in the Cil War.

The Civil War veterans buried in Plymouth Village Cemetery are: Capt. John L. Young, Capt. Amasa E. Matthews, Sgt. J. M. Bentley, J. L. Perry, L. N. Kingsbury, Jacob Bauer, James H. Kinney, J. T. Mason and Joseph Tessman. Most are from Michigan Infantry companies, but Tessman was a member of the Michigan Cavalry.

In March, 1967, I visited the old cemetery with the late Karl Starkweather, who wanted to show me the grave of his grandmother, born in 1809, "the same year as Lincoln."

The plant business greens America and shop owners

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Once they stopped by to pick up a philodendron or a pot or two of ivy. Now customers burst enthusiastically into area plant stores and without batting an eye call for baby tears, hypocyrta or schefflera.

Nor does the store owner bat an eye. This is the time of the greening of America and he is used to it.

Interest in plants began to flourish about four years ago, and area plant shop owners see no sign of drought. Plants have taken root in the American psyche, and plant parties are springing up like weeds.

"I think the plant boom is the result of the desire of many to go back to the basics and become involved with real things instead of fake ones," said Ralph Morocco, owner of Plants Boutique in Livonia.

"It has a lot to do with the feeling about ecology. Growing their own things puts people in touch with nature. They began with vegetable gardens and their interest in plants carried over into the home.

LANNY CHEMBERLIN, manager of the potting shed at Westland Garden Center, believes that "people are looking for something to relax with after work."

He considers working with plants "good therapy."

Henry Fenningdorf of Plants Galore Inc. of Livonia, attributes the green boom to the high cost of traveling. Forced to stay home, people decided to make their living quarters attractive with plants.

Airplanes and trucks have had a part in the situation too, he believes, bringing in an enormous variety of products to pique the interest of customers.

"It has a lot to do with the feeling about ecology. Growing their own things puts people in touch with nature."

"Even now our truck is in Florida to pick up fresh merchandise," he noted. "We also regularly get in plant shipments from California."

CLAPPING ITS HANDS over the burgeoning interest in plants is the Society of American Florists which looks forward to homes and apartments becoming miniature jungles.

It has already begun to use the term "high rise gardening" to cover the more urban aspects of chlorophyll revolution.

ELLEN PARKER, who gives plant parties in Plymouth, also believes it's part of the "back to nature thing."

She believes plants are a wise investment when the economy is in its present state. "A big plant costs a lot less than a big chair," she said.

"I don't try to push plants but to teach people to live with them, and find out which ones need a lot of water and which don't. I've loved plants a long time and want to interest more people in them."

Tim Ryan of Garden City, who owns Plant Village in Plymouth with Gary Arnold,, punned, "Plants grow on you."

"Plants have become popular not so much as a hobby, but as a way for people to obtain personal enjoyment as they decorate their homes," he added.

"You become attached to them. If you have a sick fern, you take a shower with it so the steam will make it better."

Ryan turned toward plants after his wife's interest in them had turned their house into a jungle.

"It rubbed off on me," he said. "I was working in a factory and had an accident. So I decided to use my compensation money to set up a plant business. Instead of selling at high markup, we try to give better deals.

"We're the Ollie Fretters of the plant business. We give plant parties, but would rather have people come here. The plants don't all travel well."

Like Nancy Petrucelli, co-owner with Gayle Czubaj of the Green Thumb in Plymouth, the society hopes that the green thumb will become a universal appendage.

However, contrary to many opinions, Ms. Petrucelli believes that the amount of greenness in a thumb is not due to mystic or innate forces.

"I think anybody can have a green thumb," she declared. "Those who seem to have one are merely those who care about plants. Because they get involved with them, they read up and find what they need."

LIKE OTHER area plant proprietors, Ms. Petrucelli finds hanging plants the variety most in demand. At her shop ferns, Swedish ivy and the wandering Jew are the best sellers.

At the Westland Garden Center it is rosary vines, cactus, spider plants and Boston ferns. Plants Boutique sells a lot of schefflera and corn plants.

Plants Galore customers pick up all of those already mentioned plus celome and piggy backs. The latter is a green foliage plant which is also called the mother of thousands. An incredibly fecund green mama,this plant arranges for a new shoot to come out of its every leaf.

At Plant Village, the plants that move best are wandering Jews and the various members of the ivy family.

But Fenningdorf finds that plant popularity runs in spurts.

"For years you couldn't sell a Boston fern or a gardenia plant," he reported. "Now if you get some in, they are gone in a couple of days."

HE HAS NOTICED that the passion for hanging plants has produced an accompanying passion for handsome containers in which to place them. Young couples are investing most heavily in potted splendor.

"They like the macrame hanger, or one made out of pottery or brass—something striking," he said.

Not that young marrieds are his only customers. Fennindorf declared that plant purchasers range in age from 16 to 90.

Morocco noted that teen-agers are particularly into terrarium making. "They seem to like to start with little plants and be able to watch them grow."

Terrariums have led to an interest on the part of all ages in sand sculpture created inside these large glass containers. Most plant stores offer lessons in this newly-popular art.

ONE OF THE MANY young people taking an interest in plants is Krys Bjornbak of Plymouth, who here is following instructions and touching the mimosa plant.

Green predominates in decor

By MARGARET MILLER

A green thumb is coming to be a valuable tool for the home decorator.

For plants, large and small, grouped and single, common and exotic, are finding their way in greater numbers than ever into the decorating schemes of suburban homes.

"I don't know about the green thumb part," says Marilyn Thayer of Livonia, "but for us plants have been a fun way to decorate and I enjoy taking care of them and learning about them.

"Our furnishings are largely recycled—we love making old things beautiful, and plants fill in the gaps and give life to furniture arrangements."

THE SCREENED PORCH where the Thayer clan—Charles and Marilyn and their son and daughter, Kelsey and Marnie—spend a lot of summer hours is an example of what plants can do to create liveabliity.

"We felt when we bought our home two years ago that this porch was one of its best assets," Mrs. Thayer said. "But we found we were using it to park all kinds of junk.

"This spring we decided to do something about that. My husband rearranged the furniture and I got out a spray can of paint to change the colors and then we started bringing out the plants. That seemed to make the big difference."

Now, with the wicker furniture blooming in a soft mauve shade, bright cushions picking up color accents and greenery banked in corners and hanging in planters, the porch is the family's favorite gathering spot.

"We like it so well," Mrs. Thayer said, "that I'm sure in the fall we won't want to give it up. We'll probably want to have it enclosed."

MAKING THE SUN PORCH more livable is not the first use plants have found in the Thayer household.

There are pots aplenty in the living room, and a stuffed owl peeps through a mantlepiece arrangement.

An entire wall of the den is banked in greenery, and the dining room also has its share of blooms. Even the kitchen of the old home is well supplied with plantings—Marilyn Thayer virtually does her dishes in a greenhouse.

The Thayers even drew their color schemes from their plants.

"We had a raspberry shade on the walls of the dining room," Mrs. Thayer said, "and we wanted an apple green in the den.

"The rooms adjoin and you can see the two shades together. I wondered if they would clash. Then I looked at the leaves of my coleus plant and there were both colors."

PLANTS AS DECORATIVE accents present just a few restrictions for this homemaker.

"I must admit I spend more than I should for plants," she said. "It's my weakness and my daughter has it too.

"She gets as excited as I do in a plant store—spends quite a bit of her aflowance for the plants she has in her room."

And all her plants—Mrs. Thayer figures the total around 150—do take up a bit of time.

"Just keeping them watered and cleaned can take quite a while," she said. "And washing them you really should do each separate leaf.

"Then there is the rearrangeing. I'm convinced many plants do better in one 'home' spot, but the trick is to find where each does best and still looks right with others in that grouping."

MRS. THAYER thinks the boom in house-plants has been exploited in some ways.

"The terra-cotta pots are more than three times what the used to cost," she said, "and I'm sure the cost of production hasn't gone up that much."

Partly because of that cost, and also because she likes the effect, she uses an assortment of containers for her plants—old coffee pots, cookie jars, bottles, "almost anything I can find."

"Garage sales are fine for locating new pots. But I don't use plastic if I have any alternative. I don't think it's good for the plants."

Westland boy's garage sale helps muscular dystrophy

Tim Tomasik opened his garage door at 6383 Canterbury Ct., Westland, this morning to start a garage sale he hopes will financially aid the fight to conquer muscular dystrophy.

The sale will take place Thursday, Aug. 14, through Sunday, Aug. 17.

The 13-year-old honor student of Nankin Mills Junior High School, who has muscular dystrophy himself, will be selling articles contributed by 15 families.

Friends and relatives are rallying to help, many of them acquaintences he has made through his interest in the citizens' band radio.

Many of them have interesting radio names such as White Cloud, Blue Rose and Running Bear. Pickup and Lady Pickup will also be there, as will Tim's dad, whose radio handle is Kielbasa King, and his mother, who is Chip Dip.

Tim is called Big T.

The members of one of the several radio clubs of which Tim is a member will turn up at the Tomasik home at noon on Saturday. They will be bringing homemade baked goods to add to the four-day sale.

Tim will appear on Channel 2 during the muscular dystrophy telethon to turn over the receipts of his garage sale. He is expected to be on Sept. 1 at 1, 2 and 3 p.m.

Priest faces expulsion over women's ordination

By MARGARET MILLER

The Rev. Peter Beebe, Episcopalian priest who grew up in this area, expects to be "thown out" of the Episcopal church and says it's because "my parents and the Christian church taught me to believe in the freedom of the individual in matters of conscience."

Rev. Beebe is the son of Mrs. Lorraine Beebe, former state senator who represented part of this area and is now head of the Michigaan Commission on Women.

Embroiled in an Episcopalian dispute over the ordination of women as priests, he expects that the Right Rev. John Burt, bishop of the diocese of Ohio, will take action to defrock him and keep him from functioning as a priest in Christ Church parish in Oberlin.

And in that event, he stated, "I will continue to function as a priest—my ordination cannot be taken away."

"Christ Church Oberlin will then have to face a decision whether to support me," he added. "That move could get the parish suspended."

REV. BEEBE SAID he finds the issue of the ordination of women priests and sexism in the church "really just the tip of the iceberg."

"The larger issue" he said, "is the question of the nature of authority in the church. Is there room for an act of conscience in the church, or do people who act on their conscience get thrown out?"

Another question he feels the church needs to consider is the role of Episcopalian laymen—whether they should be able to question decisions of the clergy or must simply have their thinking directed.

He said one of the factors that led to his decision for direct involvement in the issue of ordination of women was the fact that it was of considerable interest to some of the members of his parish "and one of the things the bishop told me was that it was my job as a priest to keep my people in line."

"People are not aware of what is happening," he stated. "I try to present this as a broad issue and to explain that unless stopped now there will be for the Episcopal bishops "more power and authority than even they can handle."

VISITING HIS MOTHER in her Dearborn home before he and his family left on a vacation, Rev. Beebe traced the events that brought him to his current status.

He said he was quite "middle-of-the-road" when, just over a year ago, 11 women were ordained by four Episcopal bishops.

All had completed training for careers in the church but up to that time had been denied ordination. The Episcopal House of Bishops, meeting in Chicago last August, ruled the ordinations invalid.

Rev. Beebe said that although he was not acquainted with any of the bishops involved or any of the women, he took a close look at the matter at the urging of some of his parish members and was personally convinced that the ordinations were valid.

Then, he said, he met one of the women and was impressed "by her sincerity in seeking to fulfill her life as she thought right."

It was then, Rev. Beebe said, that he made the move that has brought him to his position of defiance—he invited two of the women to celebrate the Eucharist in his church.

Bishop Burt then "admonished" him not to do it, he said, "but I went ahead."

Then he was "presented" to a diocesian standing committee, which, after three days of trial and five weeks of deliberation, found him guilty of violatiing church law.

"WE ARGUED during the hearing," the priest said, "that the ordinations were valid, though irregular in that certain house rules were not met, because in all other church matters the pronoun 'he' is taken generically.'

"We also argued that the House of Bishops' action was not appropriate, or legal."

He added that he had questions about the authority of the panel that judged him, since three of its members were elected after his admonition. "The church is not very careful about due process," he stated.

He was told by the panel not to invite the women to celebrate the Eucharist again until after the matter was taken up in the church's 1976 convention.

"I KNEW I could not heed that admonition," he went on, "because then I would have to ask myself why I issued the invitation, so the next weekend I invited the women to return for the eighth time."

At that point, he added, his parish's vestry authorized him to invite the women to become associated with the parish, "and two have accepted."

As things stand now, Rev. Beebe said, his bishop has "inhibited him from inviting the women priests to celebrate Eucharist and from functioning as a priest outside his own diocese.

"I have informed him I will not follow this inhibition," the priest added, "and that he will have to do what he feels necessary but I cannot go against my conscience."

The decision has been appealed to a higher diocese board, he said but it seems evident to him that he will be defrocked eventually though there may be another trial.

REV. BEEBE is not sure how his parish will move should that happen—he figures about 25 per cent of its members do not favor his actions.

"But I must act in this way because I believe what the Gospels say," he said, "that Christ's basic message is that each person has freedom to develop his personality and contribution."

He called "dangerous" the quoting of passages like "Women be silent in church" to support the church's present stance.

"The whole gospel is one of freedom for everyone," he declared.

He added that he feels the Episcopal Church has been slow to face many human issues—slavery, then racism, then war and now sexism.

"The effect of this," he stated, "has been to drive out liberals and render the church ineffective."

Redford Adray in national competition

The team that's going to Johnstown

By TOM SCHRAM
Sports Editor

"This is a team that's had to fight like hell this year."

Those are the words which Redford Adray Coach Bob Atkins uses to exemplify the squad which is presently playing for a national title at Johnstown, Pa.

To a very great extent, Atkins is right. His team, which qualified for its 11th consecutive trip to the prestigious Adray National tourney by whipping Ann Arbor twice this weekend, stood 3-7 at one time this year.

At that point, Atkins, faced with the prospect of not even making his league playoffs, told his team to take the games "one at a time".

Since then, the squad has won 20 of 24 games, including its league playoffs and, last weekend the two games against Ann Arbor.

Kevin Bara started the first contest against Ann Arbor but it was soon evident that the Redford ace could be saved for another day as Atkins' crew scored three times in the second, five in the fourth and four in the fifth en route to a 15-0 walkaway victory.

Bara went only the first three innings as Ray Ivey, Bob Lewandowski, and Kevin Smith all came on for short stints once the game was well in hand.

The four combined for a three-hitter, striking out 14.

Bob Wasilewski started things in the second with a double and he came home on an Ann Arbor error following Bara's infield hit.

John Broder singled and Bara was safe at the plate on Jeff Hodgkins' ground ball.

Mike Kalil then singled to load the bases, and, after John Roy forced one runner at the plate, Gary D'Ascenzo walked to force a run in.

In the Redford fourth, the game was put on ice.

Hodgkins started the five-run affair with a basehit, and Mike Kalil followed likewise.

Following a fielder's choice of the bat of Roy, D'Ascenzo again walked, and one run scored on an error. Two more came in on Wasilewski's single to left and another pair scored on Bara' single and another error.

Ivey then took over mound chores for Redford. "We wanted to save Bara in case we needed him if a third game was necessary to determine a champion," Atkins said.

Redford left no doubt about the outcome of the first game after its four-run fifth inning. After two singles, D'Ascenzo smashed a ground rule double and two errors on Dan Burke's ground ball which followed cleared the bases and gave Redford a 12-0 margin.

Roy's single scoring one and D'Ascenzo's basehit which brought in another two in the Redford eighth concluded the scoring.

In the second game of the best-of-three series, it was all Tom Willette. The Plymouth Salem product, who Atkins had picked up as one of three league players available to the championship team from other league teams, was most impressive, limiting Ann Arbor to four hits, striking out 14 and walking just one as Redford took another shutout victory, 7-0.

In this game, however, Atkins did not have the option of bringing in his second-line pitchers as Redford held only a 2-0 margin through the first seven and one-half innings.

Redford scored its initial two runs in the third when Hodgkins walked, Roy singled, Bara was safe on an error scoring Hodgkins, D'Ascenzo walked to load the bases and Wasilewski hit a sacrifice fly.

Ann Arbor put a runner on third in the fifth with none out and in the eighth with one out but each time Willette bore down to end the threat.

Then, in the eighth, Redford broke things open, sending nine men to the plate and scoring five times.

John Broder's two-run triple was the big hit on that rally.

Atkins was optimistic that his team could compete on an equal basis with the other teams in the tournament.

"So much depends on the draw," he said. "If we get in with all the other powerful teams, it will be very difficult," he said.

Atkins listed Detroit, New Orleans, Washington and Birmingham, Ala., among the traditionally strong teams in the 16-team tournament.

"This may be the strongest pitching team we've ever taken to Johnstown. And in a tournament situation, pitching depth is vital," he said.

Redford also boasts nine players on its roster who have had Johnstown exposure before.

Atkins said that if there was one weakness on the team it was its lack of ability to hit the long ball consistently.

The tournament will be a double elimination affair with games Wednesday and Thursday to start with.

Redford has never produced a national champion although it has had one runner-up in Adray competition. And Atkins would not predict that this would be the year.

"But the way we played this weekend, I am certainly not pessimistic," he said.

By JIM BRADLEY

Bob Atkins, the guiding light behind Redford Adray's many championship baseball team, rarely played the game himself while growing up.

"It was too cold in northern Michigan where I went to high school," says Atkins, "and we didn't have a baseball team. We played some on weekends, but we were busy playing fast-pitch softball all over the state."

And the man who just won his 11th consecutive Adray baseball title was a football standout at Alma where he played four years as a halfback.

For one so seemingly unprepared to teach baseball, Atkins has become an institution at Redford Union High School and around the township because of his success on the diamond.

The young coach leaned forward in his office and ran his hand through his thinning crop of hair. Actually, that's just a euphemism for going prematurely bald.

"Would you please tell everybody that I just turned 38 years old?" inquired Atkins with a laugh. "I've been around here 17 years and many think I'm an old man."

He became head baseball coach at Redford Union High when he was only 21 years old. He had just completed his education at Alma College with a major in physical education and English when he came to RU.

Before college, Bob was a three-sport star in football, basketball and track and playing a little baseball on weekends in a summer league.

"High Schools up north didn't have baseball teams because the weather was too cold in the spring," he says. "Now, with the beginning of the state baseball tournament, they're starting to produce high school teams."

Atkins lives in Farmington Hills with his wife, Marty, 16-year-old daughter Debbie and three sons, Bob, 15, Craig, 14, and 8-year-old Tom. "They're all great sports fans, too," says Atkins.

Atkins began the Redford Township teenage boys' baseball program in the summer of 1961 and one of his favorite teams was his first one in 1962. That group of athletes recorded a 20-3 record before losing in the state semi-finals.

"That was the real beginning of summer baseball in Redford Township," says Atkins, who refuses to be pinned down to naming his all-time favorite squad. "All the boys I've coached are great young men and it's hard to choose between the teams."

Atkins did say, however, that his 1965 team which won the state title was a good one. "So was our 1968 squad which lost in the national finals at Johnstown, Pa. to New Orleans."

Atkins mixes talent with discipline to accomplish his achievements.

"I'd probably be classified as a 'hard-nose' but I'll bend over backwards to help a boy. Just don't try to take advantage of me," he warns.

"I'm very direct and honest. You never have to worry where you stand with me. I think it's much better that way."

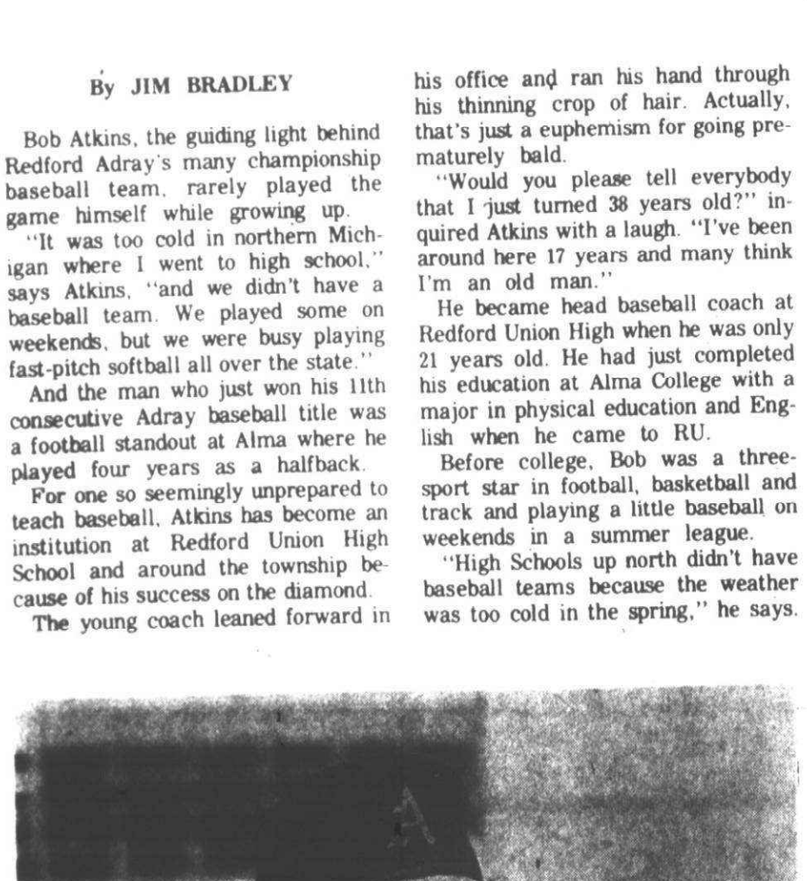
Thirty boys have gone on to play college baseball from Atkins' tutelage and five have signed pro contracts. Two have played in the major leagues. Rickey Clark, a pitcher in the 1962-64 era, hurled for the California Angels, while catcher Bill Fahey was the number-one winter draft pick in 1970 and is now playing for the Texas Rangers.

"Oh yes," Atkins reflected, "we've had some very good ballplayers around here and we couldn't have won these championships without their talent."

The reason Atkins' boys don't quit is because of the dedication of their coach. And slogans are posted all around the Redford Union locker room to remind those who might forget.

Probably the sign that best describes this winner of so many championships is posted over the entrance door. It says: "Pride in '75: it begins with you! Do the job everyday you go out. Will you be a better player after today?"

Obviously, Coach Bob Atkins practices what he preaches.



BOB ATKINS, the man behind the champions, says: "I'd probably be classified as a 'hard-nose' and I guess that's correct. But I'll bend over backwards to help any boy who wants it."

O&E 7th annual golf tourney set

Scrape the rust off the putter and laminate the woods. Shake the dust out of the old golf bag and call the pro shop for lesson appointments.

It's time to get ready for the Seventh Annual Observer & Eccentric Open Golf Tournament.

This year's tournament, which is slated for Saturday and Sunday Sept. 13 and 14 in the men's division, promises to be the biggest ever. Last year's tourney drew 160 entrants in four flights for the 36-hole affair and according to Gary Whitener, host pro at Livonia's Whispering Willows Golf Course, better things are hoped for this year.

"With the growth we saw in this tournament last year, I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the number reach 200 or better this time around," he said.

Last year the tournament was opened to Oakland County residents for the first time and a substantial portion of this year's field is expected to come from across Eight Mile, according to Whitener.

"There's no doubt in my mind that the Oakland County area served by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers is a hotbed of golf. I'm familiar with many golfers from there who are just excellent players," Whitener said.

According to Whitener, the reason for the tournament's popularity stems, to a great extent, from the way it is run.

"I try to run this tournament just like a PGA event. It's class all the way and the better golfers really appreciate that," he said.

A $20 entry fee covers green fees, trophies and prizes. Souvenir golfcart tags will also be a part of the package this year.

As always, a women's division also will be played—with a Thursday, Sept. 18, tee-off date scheduled.

Entry fee for the women's division is $7.50.

Rain-out dates for the men's tournament are scheduled as follows: Rain-out for Saturday Sept. 13 is Sunday Sept. 14 with the final round being played Saturday Sept. 20. Rain-out date for both days will be Saturday and Sunday Sept. 20 and 21.

The rain-out date for the women's tournament is Friday, Sept. 19.

Whispering Willows Municipal Golf Course is located on the corner of Eight Mile and Newburgh Roads in Livonia.

Further information is available from Whitener at the course.

Ply. Class F in quarterfinals

The Plymouth Wildcat Class F baseball team reached the quarterfinals of the state tournament last Monday, winning a pair of games to raise its season marks to 14-1.

The Wildcats won the District 4 championship Monday by winning the first game of competition 11-4 over Pontiac as Curt Guideau hit and pitched the team to victory. Besides succesfully handling the mound chores, Guideau went three-for-three. Tracey Gaffka also contributed three hits in four trips.

In the second game, Guideau worked the first four innings and was replaced by Kirk Rasmussen who got the win. Guideau had two triples in three at-bats as the team beat Highland Park 5-4. Plymouth scored all five runs on just four hits.

The Wildcats resume action next Monday at East Detroit.

Heat winners

Fran Harden and Mike Bolick, both of Westland, were Late Model heat winners last weekend at Flat Rock Speedway.

Bolick also won the consolation race in the Late Model competition.

Dennis Pace of Plymouth took second in the Figure Eight competition.

By W.W. EDGAR

From all indications, bowling is heading into its best season especially in the western suburbs.

From Farmington to Wayne and all points between the establishments are filled with leagues. And, except for a single opening here and there, all teams are organized and ready to go.

One of the main features of the coming season will be a vast increase in day time bowling. This is being brought about by the neighborhood women's leagues and a larger number of senior citizens taking up the game.

"Would you believe it, " MIdge Poshka, day manager at Westland Bowl, commented, "we have open bowling only on Saturday nights. We just don't have any on Sunday, which used to be a big open bowling day."

Westland Bowl also will house one of the largest women's leagues again with 60 teams on Tuesdays. That's 300 women and there is talk of another almost as large later in the week.

At Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington the women are reporting in such numbers that two leagues are being planned each morning, with the first at 9.30 a.m.

EACH OF THE Plymouth establishments-- Plaza Bowl and Plymouth Bowl-- is adding a second senior citizens league, so popular has the game become among the retirees.

There also will be an increase in senior citizen competition at Garden Lanes, with the ladies again taking over most of the day schedules.

One of the features of the new season will be the return of the Civic League to Livonia Lanes. This league was organized shortly after the lanes were built in 1940 and now is one of the oldest circuits in the entire area.

So, it looks like another great season.

MARGE KROPACEK, the Plymouth housewife who captains the Shirey Trailer team in the all-star leagues, scored another victory for the women last week when she triumphed in the popular TV show, "Beat The Champ."

She also gained the admiration of all concerned when she asked that the TV set which goes to the winner be presented to the Children's Home.

THE IMPORTANCE of a single pin was evidenced agsin last week-end when Francis and Alice Wall won the Plaza Bowl Moonlight Doubles by that margin with a 226 game. What's more important is the fact that the single pin was worth $775.

THE MEN'S ALL-STAR leagues are going to open their long season during the last week of the month. The Bonanza Classic, formerly the Greater Detroit All-Star, will usher in the new campaign at Eastland Bowl, Tuesday, Aug. 27. The following Thursday, the action turns to Orchard Lanes. The Gavie Sweepstakes, which always precedes the league openings, is set for Monday Aug. 26.

The Bowlerettes and the Ladies All-Star will not open until the week following Labor Day..

Michele Beres, the St. Clair Shores girl who won the Michigan youth title and went on to the nationals, is using her scholarship by enrolling at Macomb Community College in the Fall.

THE NATION'S LEADING professional bowlers will meke their annual appearance in the Detroit area during the week of Aug. 23 to Sept. 1, in the Columbia Open in Hartfield Lanes in Berkley.

The field will be headed by Earl Anthony, the leading money winner with $100,000 last year and more than $70,000 thus far in 1975.

Many consider him the greatest bowler of all time.

Fastpitch game for charity set

Dick Coppens of Redford Township and Billy Johnson of Livonia are two of the local stars who will be playing for the Metro Detroit World Championship team which will take on past world champions Burch-Nothduft this week.

Some of this country's finest fastpitch players will be on hand Thursday, Aug. 14 for the game which will benefit the Detroit Association for Retarted Children. Game time at East Detroit's Memorial Field is slated for 6 p.m.

Greg Wright vies for national title

Wolverine Raceway driving star Greg Wright, who has almost completely dominated the Detroit-area harness racing scene the past two years, is now officially the winningest sulky sitter in North America.

Latest statistics issued by the U.S. Trotting Association give Wright credit for 210 victories in 1975 compared with 199 for runner-up Carmine Abbatiello of New York. Walter Paisley, an annual leader in Chicago harness circles is in third place with 196 wins.

Although numbered among the sport's top ten through each of the last five years, Wright has never enjoyed the leadership this late in the season. Herve Filion, the relentless Canadian super star, has been making a runaway of the race since 1968, even using a personal helicopter to compete in the afternoon and evening at different tracks.

"With Herve settled down a bit after breaking every record in the book, maybe I can win it this year," Wright laughed on a recent night at Wolverine. "My stable has never been this well balanced and so far I'm getting my share of the driving luck."

The 29-year-old Windsor, Canada, native had just reeled off 1:58 and 1:58.4 race victories behind Armbro Mystic and Ickawowie at Wolverine and had pushed his record at the big Livonia mile track to 28 victories through the first 23 nights. Earlier in the summer at Hazel Park he had set a new all-time Michigan record of 90 wins during an 82-night meeting.

"Certainly I'd like to win the national title and all the nice things that go with it," Wright freely admitted. "But I'm not going to let it pressure me. I have a fine bunch of horse owners in my stable and I'm only trying to do the best I can for them. That's the name of the game."

Training harness horses while he was still in high school, Wright was fifth in the North American rankings in 1972, ninth in 1973 and a strong third in 1974. Now in his tenth year as a driver, he has won over 1,750 races and his horses have logged earnings approaching $4-million.

In the Michigan neighborhood the past two years the handsome, quiet talking Canadian has been downright invincible. He won driving titles at both Wolverine and Hazel Park in 1974, and added still another championship at Windsor Raceway during the winter.

"I didn't bust into this sport overnight," Wright emphasizes. "I was hanging around the barns when I was nine or 10, jogging them on the track when I was 13 and making $40 a week before and after my high school classes getting horses ready for another man to race. I know a lot of guys who get their driver's license after they've been around horses only a little while, and after a year they're dropping out."

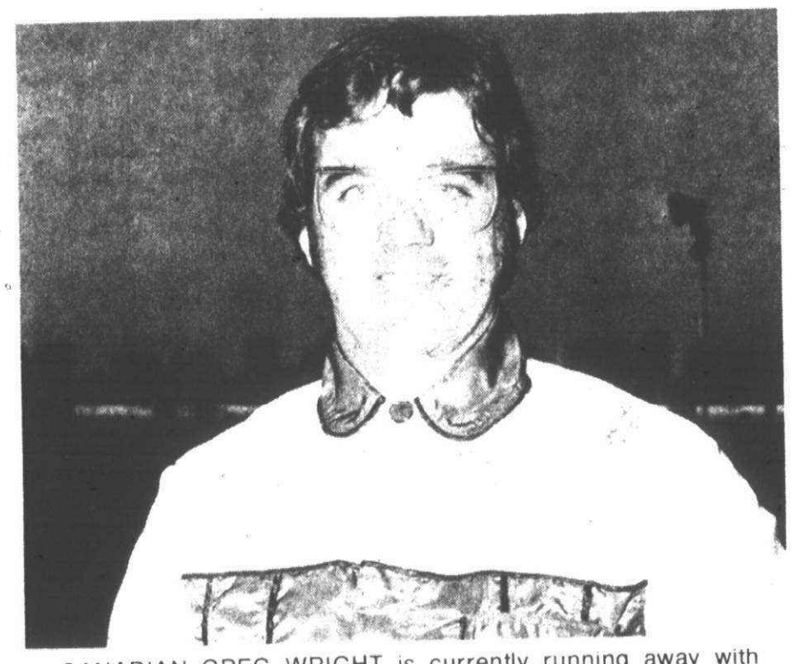
At age 13, with not enough money to invest in a stopwatch, Greg persuaded an old man to help him work a horse.

"He owned a watch and he'd stand at the side of the track and wave his hand if I was taking the horse too slow, or hold up his hand if I was too fast. I learned how to rate a mile pretty good that way."

Wright will never talk about his successes without mentioning his No. 1 assistant Jerry Moffat. Moffat never races a horse, just helps Greg train them. And Wright says he's "the best."

"When you're racing seven, eight races a night, you need help," Wright explains. Jerry is like my right hand and I rely on him completely. When he says a horse is ready to go you can believe him."

Everybody believes Wright and Moffat at Wolverine these evenings. Of the 26 2-minute miles turned in thus far, horses from the Greg Wright barns have contributed six. And if the overall victory clip continues, track patrons will see an unprecedented 100 wins hung up by one lone harness racing operation.



CANADIAN GREG WRIGHT is currently running away with harness horse driver honors at Livonia's Detroit Race Course and is also vying for his first national championship in the standardbred sport.

State take-over of utilities sought by HRP petitions

Suburban residents are interested in having the state of Michigan take over the privately-owned gas and electric utility companies, according to a Human Rights Party petition coordinator for western Wayne County.

Jeaneane Havstad of Livonia said Monday that she collected 387 signatures in the first two weeks of circulating petitions in area shopping centers.

She said the current petition drive has been the easiest to get signatures of all campaigns she has worked in since 1968.

Ms. Havstad hopes to get 13,000 signatures of registered voters by next July's deadline.

THE PARTY wants to force a state vote on a constitutional amendment which would, if approve, created a State Power Authority which would own and operate the existing private electric and gas utilities, and set rates.

Ms. Havstad said persons signing her petitions indicated they are upset with frequent rate increases for electric and gas services and are quick to sign the petitions.

She admitted that there was one problem at a K-Mart Store, Seven Mile and Farmington Road, where a security guard asked her to leave because she didn't have the store's permission to circulate petitions on private property.

Ms. Havstad first refused to leave, but complied later when the Livonia police department sent officers to the store.

But she felt the campaign will be successful.

"People are glad to see me," she said. "This is the easiest petition drive I've worked on."

ON A STATE basis, the HRP wants 260,000 signatures to force a public vote at the November 1976 general election.

In announcing the campaign Monday, Party Chairperson Ronald Rogers said "politicians and bureaucrats have made empty promises about utility reform for years. Now, with this petition, the people can gain for themselves the economical, efficient utility service they need."

The biggest improvements in the public ownership of the utilities, Rogers said, are lower rates for consumers—since there would be no profit built into the rate structure.

He stressed there are now more than 3,000 public power agencies in the country and their rates are as much as 50 per cent lower than other privately-owned companies.

The party proposes that a State Power Authority be created and that it have the authority to negotiate with private utilities to buy their equities.

If a negotiatied price can't be reached, the issue would go to a panel of judges to resolve.

Rogers said the purchase of the utilities would be done without tax dollars. The purchase would be financed through revenue bonds issued by the authority.

The authority would have five members elected on a state-wide basis following nominations by political parties.

THE PARTY said if the amendment is approved, there would be annual savings of up to $100 for a homeowner using gas and electricity.

Rogers said the existing utility companies have been successful in providing Americans with better service and lower rates.

"Consumers in Michigan can also enjoy those benefits, if we work together for public power," Rogers said.

"The Human Rights Party calls on all consumers to support this petition drive. Together we can do it, we can defeat the utility companies and win for ourselves the quality utility service they have failed to give us."

Livonian leads ethnic fest

Dave Martin of Livonia will lead the St. Andrew's Piping Band as its pipe major at the 126th annual St. Andrew's Society Highland Games Aug. 21 at Bob-Lo Island.

The band will be in traditional piping competition with six others: Sons of Scotia Pipe Band from Lake Orion, Flint Scottish, Clan MacRae of Detroit, Clan MacNeil Pipe Band of Lansing, Scottish Society of Windsor and 42nd Pipe Band from Marine City.

Highland dancers will show off their fancy footwork during the society's 77th festival at Bob-Lo.

A parade down Jefferson in Detroit is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Departures from downtown are at 10 and 11 a.m. A 10 a.m. sailing is also planned from the Wyandotte dock at the foot of Eureka.

Advance tickets are available from the Scottish Import Shop, 222 Sherman, Royal Oak. Tickets also may be obtained on the day of the sailing at the Bob-Lo ticket offices.

Art Ala Carte debuts Sunday

Two Livonia woman will be among the 50 artists and craftspeople featured at the free Art Ala Carte festival from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 17, at the Highland Lakes clubhouse, on Eight Mile, one mile west of Haggerty.

Mary Taros will exhibit her dolls, and Marcela Walton, her paintings.

The exhibit and sale will include handcrafted items priced from under $1 to more than $1,000. Featured will be traditional and comtemporary paintings in oil, watercolor and acrylics; gold, sivler, brass copper and gemstone jewelry; dolls, toys and dollhouses; steel and other metal sculpture; ceramic and glass works; pottery; weaving; and illustrations.

In case of heavy rain, Art Ala Carte will be held Sunday, Aug. 24.

The festival has been coordinated by Brenda Robinson, originator of the Art on the Lake festival in Troy.

Area scouts tapped for 'Daisy' chorus

Girl Scouts from Livonia and Garden City have been selected to sing in the chorus of "Daisy," a musical production based on the life of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouts.

Jean Mandalis of Garden City, and Dorene Dudek and Lisabeth Riopelle, both of Livonia, begin rehearsals later this month with the Piccolo Opera Company which is performing the principal parts.

The girls are among 60 scouts from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties chosen to sing. "Daisy" will make its U.S. premiere Nov. 14 and 15 in Detroit's Masonic Temple.

JEAN, 16, a student at Garden City West High School, was the only Garden City scout to audition. A member of Senior Troop 80, she sang "My Favorite Things," "Sound of Music," and "Sunrise, Sunset."

"My whole family was really excited when my letter arrived stating I was chosen," says Jean. "My mom opened the letter before I came home school because she just couldn't wait."

Jean says she is anxious to start practicing and thinks it's a fine opportunity to be on stage in a full-fledged professional show. She has been a girl scout for five years and is presently finishing a driver's training course before "Daisy," rehearsals get under way.

Jean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mandalis, 451 East Rose in Garden City.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD Dorene is the youngest member of the local trio. The bright, perky, blond-haired youngster recently flew up from brownie to junior scout.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dudek, 14016 Brentwood, in Livonia, Dorene says she "really likes to sing."

A student at St. Genevieve Catholic School in Livonia, Dorene sang "My Favorite Things" for her audition last February. Besides singing, she plays the organ and likes to swim and bowl.

Dorene's mother was informed of the audition early this year by the Girl Scout newsletter. She was a brownie leader at the time. "I told my troop about the chorus auditions. Dorene was the only scout to tryout from the troop," says Mrs. Dudek.

LISABETH, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Joseph Riopelle, 15631 Riverside Drive, Livonia. She is a senior at Bentley High School and a member of the concert choir.

She also read about "Daisy" auditions in "Knapsack," the scout newsletter.

"I am looking forward to singing in the show," says Lisabeth, who recently completed a science summer program at Lawrence Institute of Technology. She is planning a career in engineering.

Lisabeth sang "Till There Was You" for her audition. She also is a member of the Livonia Youth Symphony in which she plays cello. She toured Europe last summer with the Tudor Singers of Frost Junior High School and has been a scout for 11 years.

Lisabeth will participate in Mystic Sailing Camp with her Senior Troop at Mystic, Conn.

Asked what the girls enjoy most about scouting, they replied, "camping— and of course singing."

"DAISY," a family opera is being sponsored jointly by the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit and three other scout councils in the tri-county area.

Through song and dance, the two-act opera will highlight a panorama of events from Mrs. Low's life and musically portray the beginnings of the Girl Scout movement.

The Detroit performances of "Daisy" are among the first productions of the original opera which was written especially for Girl Scouts to help make them and the public more aware of Mrs. Low and scouting.

In the future "Daisy" will be performed by scout councils throughout the country.
